Benchmark yields and rates above are published by the National Bank of Ethiopia and the IMF; NBE liberalized deposit and lending rates in January 2026 (no floors or caps), so the Q1 FY2024/25 average lending and deposit rates are the latest full interest-rate structure we found.

03 Investment opportunities

- Agriculture. EIC priority sector: 'The opportunity to serve a growing domestic food market.'
- Manufacturing. EIC priority sector ranging from light manufacturing to food and beverages.
- Mining. EIC priority sector, promoted as a high-potential mining destination.
- ICT. EIC priority sector leveraging a growing, tech-savvy local talent pool to serve the global market.
- Tourism. EIC priority sector, marketed as 'the land of origins'.
- Energy, health, transport and logistics. Listed by EIC as other sectors of opportunity: electricity for a large unserved population, an underserved healthcare sector, and logistics for a landlocked country.

04 Incentives

- Investors establishing a new enterprise are entitled to an income tax exemption, with length depending on sub-sector, export volume and location; losses during the exemption period can be carried forward.
- Duty-free import of capital goods and construction materials for new or expanding enterprises.
- Capital repatriation and remittance of dividends and interest are guaranteed to foreign investors under the Investment Proclamation; minimum foreign investment capital is USD 200,000 (USD 150,000 in a joint venture with a domestic investor).
- FX liberalization continued in July 2026: the FX commission was reduced from 2.5 to 1.5 percent and the export surrender requirement on goods from 50 to 30 percent.

05 Points to consider

- Inflation and interest rates: inflation was 13.4 percent in May 2026, up from 9.7 percent in December 2025, and the National Bank of Ethiopia responded by raising its policy rate by 1 percentage point in July 2026; the IMF advises readiness to tighten further if needed.
- Exchange rate: the birr has depreciated about 1.3 percent per month under the market-based system, and the parallel market spread has ranged between 10 and 20 percent since October 2025; FX liberalization continued in July 2026 (see incentives).
- Debt restructuring: completion of the restructuring under the IMF-supported program is in progress, with an agreement-in-principle reached with Eurobond holders.
- Fuel import costs: higher international fuel prices raise import costs; the IMF brought forward about USD 200 million of program financing to help address these external pressures.
